THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE OF THE CITY OF BOSTON

1975-1976

Congratulations:

During the years that you have been a member of my school, I have observed your spirit and enthusiasm for the total school program.

May this attitude continue to be yours in your future lives. It will aid and guide you in whatever life style and endeavor you choose. As citizens, you are to take your place in society well equipped to handle the years ahead.

Best wishes and good luck.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE OF THE CITY OF BOSTON

To The Graduates of the Class of 1976:

June of 1976, is an exciting time to enter the mainstream of American life! As you know, this is the Bi-Centennial celebration of our nation's history. As such, it is appropriate to re-examine the philosophical roots of the American Dream!

As I reflect upon my relationship with you, both as individuals and collectively as the members of the Class of 1976, I realize that this is what the American Dream is all about--White, Black, and Hispanic young people all enjoying and participating in the fruits of American freedom!

The philosophical roots of the American Dream can only be summed up in the eloquent words of Thomas Jefferson as stated in the Declaration of Independence: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that are among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

To a very great extent, you, as the Graduates of 1976, will determine whether or not the American Dream will be perpetuated! Will America enter her third century secure with the hope and promise that truly: "All men (and women) are created equal!"

Peace! Paz!

Congratulations and Good Luck!
Felicitaciones y Buena Suerte!

Sincerely yours,
Sinceramente,

SIGNING THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

We, the members of the yearbook staff dedicate this publication to the past and to the future.

A DECLARATION OF INTERDEPENDENCE

We hold these truths to be self-evident

That two hundred years after declaring our independence, the American people are entering a new era.

That today we must acknowledge the interdependence of all people.

That education can be a vehicle through which peace and the principles of the American Revolution, - life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, - may be the guidelines for human relationship on our planet.

That schools around the world are in a unique position to help bring about a harmoniously interdependent global community based on the principles of peace and justice.

IN MEMORIAM to Cheryl Reader

Sometimes it is hard to understand

Why certain things must be,

But there is a reason for it all

Beyond our power to see.

The blow was hard, the shock severe,

We never thought her death so near.

But only those who have lost can tell

The pain of parting without farewell.

She lived well and she lived wise

Her home is now beyond the skies.

SCHOOL HISTORY

Jamaica Plain High School is 300 years old this year. During its three centuries it has built an impressive tradition of innovation and endurance.

In 1676, one hundred years before the Declaration of Independence, one of the first school houses in the United States was built at the junction of South, Centre, and Eliot Streets in what was then part of Roxbury.

In 1689, long before the Emancipation Proclamation, the school became integrated on the insistence of John Eliot, Apostle to the Indians, who donated seventy-five acres of land "to and for the maintenance, support, and encouragement of a school and school master at that part of Roxbury commonly called Jamaica or Pond Plain, for the teaching and instruction of the children at that end of town (together with such Negroes and Indians as may or shall come to said school) and to no other use, interest or purpose whatever."

Known as the Eliot School, the schoolhouse was replaced by a new building in 1731, and a third building was erected in 1787 on Eliot Street.

The town of West Roxbury assumed control of Eliot School in 1855. Under Principal Daniel B. Hagar, new emphasis was placed on academic achievement and the school became one of the finest in the country. Another visionary innovation took place in 1858 when the school became one of the first co-educational public schools in the United States. This event took place in a building on Thomas Street called Village Hall.

In 1873 West Roxbury was annexed to Boston and the Eliot Schools' name was changed to West Roxbury High School. It was not until 1924 that the school founded in 1676 in the part of town "commonly called Jamaica or Pond Plain" became known as Jamaica Plain High School.

Another important innovation took place during the last two decades of the 19th century. At that time very few young people were given a high school education. It was the idea of new Head Master George C. Mann that the opportunity for secondary education be opened to more and more students of the area. Mr. Mann was successful in increasing the enrollment dramatically. This idea was implemented in a new building on Elm Street on the site of the Loring Greenough garden.

In 1901 a new building was dedicated and with a later addition, still remains Jamaica Plain High School. There have been only eight head masters of Jamaica Plain High School in this century that has seen so much change and turmoil. Mr. Mann was succeeded by Oscar C. Gallagher in 1914, and Maurice J. Lacey in 1919. Mr. John B. Casey became an institution in himself as Head Master from 1939 to 1960. He was followed by Edward F. Brickley, Joseph Callahan and Roger Connor. Our present Head Master, Mr. Edward F. McHugh was appointed in 1970.

In 1976, as Jamaica Plain High School begins its fourth century, the emphasis is still on academic achievement and sound preparation for a career. It is our business to educate students to the limit of their capabilities and interests.
